How to Get Friends Fast!

Due to the phenomenal success of Myspace many websites have sprung up to cater specifically to the millions of users on the popular social networking site. You're probably already familiar with many of the different Myspace resource websites. What you might not be aware of is there are many resource sites that are made for the sole purpose of building your friends list fast?

These Friend adding websites give you the potential to get thousands of friends in a relatively short amount of time. They usually work on a point system in which for every friend you personally add to your list they give you a certain amount of points. These points add up to get you in the queue for others to add you to their lists.

One thing to remember is that friends accumulated in this manner will be completely untargeted and may not be the most receptive to bulletins, comments etc. These friends are often other promoters, website owners or teenagers looking to win some form of popularity contest.

Important Reminder:

You can not add as many friends as you want every day. To stay within Myspace's limits you should never add more than 300 per day. Others will tell you 400 to 500 is ok I would personally not risk it. In fact even 300 may bring you scrutiny, as there is no set in stone rules for this. So be careful not to overdo it. The good thing is, there is no limit to the number of friends you can receive!

Read on to learn how to have people add you to their friends lists.

FriendStorm

To Join FriendStorm visit: FriendStorm.net

The screenshot shows the FriendStorm.net website. At the top left is the logo "FriendStorm.net". To its right is a navigation menu with links: "Home", "What is FriendStorm?", "Get Featured", "FriendStorm on Your Profile", and "Forum". Below the navigation is a large black banner with white text that reads "MYSACE BANDS!!" in a stylized font, followed by "somanymp3s.com" and "GET 1,000s OF PLAYS PER DAY!". Below the banner is the FriendStorm.net logo again. On the left side, there is a text block: "FriendStorm is a system which allows you to make thousands of new friends on MySpace today!", "Users with the most points will receive the most friend requests. Get points by adding other users. It's as simple as that!", and "FriendStorm is great for promoting your band or just making new friends! Just enter your Friend ID in the login box above to begin." On the right side, there is a dark grey login box with the text "Friend ID Where is it?" above a white input field. Below the input field is a "Join" button and a blue arrow pointing left.

What is FriendStorm and how does it work?

FriendStorm uses a point system that gives participants who refer others 'add requests.' When you join by entering your 'friend Id,' you'll see a list of other users who you add to your friends list.

When you add a friend you'll receive a point. Once you start receiving points you'll automatically begin receiving friends adding you. Check out the Friend Storm FAQ sheet for additional detailed info.

FriendFury

To join FriendFury visit: www.friendfury.com

The screenshot shows the FriendFury website interface. At the top left is the 'FRIENDFURY' logo. To its right, a statistics box states 'Stats are updated every 5 minutes' and lists: Total Users: 59860, Daily Requests: 23260, Daily Points: 23590, and Daily Referrals: 34. Below the logo is a navigation menu with links: 'Log in time depends on myspace traffic', 'ENTER YOUR ID' (with a text input field and 'SUBMIT' button), 'Where's my ID?', 'HOW IT WORKS', 'ADD FRIENDS', 'POST BULLETINS', 'GET FEATURED', 'CONTACT', and 'AFFILIATES'. The main content area is divided into three columns. The middle column, titled 'WHERE'S MY ID?', contains a numbered list: 1. Go to your Myspace homepage (you need to be logged in) or click here to go there. 2. Select "Profile" where it says "View My." 3. Your ID# is the number at the end of the URL in the address bar. Below this is a screenshot of a browser address bar showing 'ser.viewprofile&friendid=26482713' and a Myspace logo. The right column, titled 'DAILY BLOG', features a link 'View All entries and post comments on Blogger', the date 'THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 2006', and the headline 'Ready, set, go!'. The blog text reads: 'FriendFury now has 120 Affiliates! Now we have enough to finally start our weekly "competition", if you will. The top 5 affiliates who refer the most users every week will be given FREE advertising space on FriendFury. We tried adding ads like you'd see on Myspace, but not only do they mean nothing to you guys, but they're more than ugly as well. So now every week you will be getting a refreshed list of advertisers who have services relevant to what you want! For those interested in becoming a FriendFury Affiliate, we're still looking for more! You can't pass up free publicity, and we can't pass up more users, so let's help each other out.)

What is FriendFury and how does it work?

FriendFury is very similar to Friend Storm and uses a point system to determine how many friends add you based upon how many friends you refer and add.

The FriendFury site puts emphasis on featured profiles first over those who have referred the most people. Featured profiles are those who have paid a premium fee to get to the top of the ranking. To quickly build your friends list without doing any promotion who may wish to pay the daily, weekly or monthly fee to receive featured status.

HOW TO FIND YOUR FRIEND ID NUMBER

What is FriendCraze?

FriendCraze works on a points system that gives you 1 point for each person you add. The more points you accumulate the more you get rewarded.

You can also receive additional points through the referral of others to FriendCraze. You get 10 points for each person who comes to FriendCraze through your link.

Helpful Tip

There is an interesting anomaly when using the Friendfury service that allows you to accumulate points without adding friends.

You can do this by going to Friendfury and entering your profile Id into the box and click submit. Scroll down to where it says 'Add Friends' and click it. Then click on the 'Add Friends' image you see that looks like the one below.

You'll see five separate Myspace profiles load on to your screen. If you close the screens without adding them as friends you'll notice that you'll accumulate points without adding them as friends.

This is an easy way to build up tons of points without actually adding them yourself, which when overdone can have adverse effects that I told you about earlier. Once you've repeated this many times you'll accrue many points that will translate into many people adding your profile to their friends list.

This process may work on some of the other services as well I have not experimented with them all. Do remember that this is not the way these services were intended to run, but a loophole that I have discovered.

Using these services will help you get thousands of friends in a short amount of time. Just be careful to limit the number that you personally request and you'll keep your account in good standing.
